KATE JOPSON OPENS FORNES PRODUCTION WITH CIRCLE X THEATRE

MFA Directing alumna Kate Jopson is currently in rehearsals for María Irene Fornés' Fefu and Her Friends with Circle X Theatre. The production is designed by MFA Scenic Design alumna Lily Bartenstein, MFA Lighting Design alumna Kristin Swift, and MFA Costume Design alumna Melanie Watnick. The production is being staged at the historic Frank Lloyd Wright-designed Hollyhock House in Los Angeles.

On a seemingly ordinary day in 1935, a group of women gather to plan a philanthropic fundraiser. The host Fefu is impulsive, unapologetic and boldly leads the women until Julia enters the picture. Once brilliant and fearless, Julia’s spirit was broken when a mysterious hunting accident left her paralyzed. Or did it? Featuring an international cast of women, Fornés’ 1977 play explores how subtle pressures work on women across the world to conform to an ideal of meekness and femininity. Performances begin May 6th.

WHITNEY ANNE ADAMS DESIGNS VR EXPERIENCE

MFA Costume Design alumna Whitney Anne Adams has designed the costumes for a new VR film called Broken Night which is currently showing at the Tribeca Film Festival. Starring Emily Mortimer and Alessandro Nivola, Broken Night is a "choose your own adventure" narrative about a home invasion gone wrong.

MICHAEL HAMMOND STARS IN ADAPTATION OF HAMLET

MFA Acting alumnus Michael Hammond is currently performing as Laertes in Boris Akun's hamlet. a version at St. Clement's in New York City.

Set in a crumbling hierarchical empire, hamlet. a version shifts the usual focus from the iconic philosophical title character to the intrigue, opportunism, and political scheming of a burgeoning police state. This starkly realized new world order, insidiously ushered in by murderous and destabilizing tactics, provides a whole new meaning to the phrase 'something is rotten in the state of Denmark.' The production performs through May 7th.
