MIKO, a space between
GRADUATE DANCE THESIS, DIRECTED BY AURORA
LAGATTUTA

A site specific performance.

MIKO, a space between is a site-specific dance performance that will occur at Scripps Institution of Oceanography January 23, 24 and 25th, 2019. Miko: a space between features 12 women: 9 dancers and 3 musicians, who fearlessly move to understand, to mend and to uplift the interwoven relationships within themselves, each other and the space. Miko: a space between is a dance made in response to the current climatic crisis and increased acts of hatred, xenophobia, racism and sexism and humbly asks how can dance help? Miko: a space between weighs how small gestures of kindness can have endurance over our whole lives. Miko: a space between is a danced ecology that's investigates if dancing with places and others can create a felt experience of reciprocity between oneself, others and environments. Miko: a space between is a dance performance that nurtures intimate and expansive spaces for both audience and dancers to emerge with insights into the roles one plays within the planetary continuum.
PROFESSOR LISA PORTER TEACHES WORKSHOP FOR YOUTH IN CHINA AT YOUTH MUSIC CULTURE GUANGDONG (YMCG)

Cultivating Creative Process: Speaking the Language of Production Across Cultures

What happens onstage is deeply connected to the work offstage. The workshop focused on understanding the art and craft of production. The conversation included conceptual and practical approaches to how spatial relationships, audio, lighting, and video influence collaboration and performance. Examples from intercultural work in the arts were used to illustrate specific and effective production techniques.

In addition to teaching this workshop, Head of Stage Management Lisa Porter also served as Production Stage Manager for the Yo Yo Ma helmed event.
