Content & Sensory Warnings

grippy sock vacation discusses the following topics: suicide and suicidality, self-harm, depression, anxiety, borderline personality disorder, OCD, mental illness stigma, eating disorders, postpartum depression.

Summary

It’s Family Weekend at Hollybrook Knolls Residential Treatment Center. Caroline is visiting her younger sister, high school senior Isabella. Isabella has a lot to say. Caroline doesn’t want to hear any of it, but maybe she’ll learn the TikTok dance Isabella wants to teach her. A darkly comic exploration of sistererhood and mental illness, grippy sock vacation explores the secrets we can’t afford to keep.
Note from the director

Family; How do we navigate generations of collective unprocessed pain, and how long is survival mode sustainable?

When did we inherit the need to pretend everything is okay?

The stigma of mental illness across cultures and generations is something that I had to personally fight against and grapple with myself this past year after being diagnosed with depression and anxiety on top of ADHD and getting family backlash for considering treatment.

Among the many divides in this country, we see generational polarization.

Grippy Sock Vacation by Beth Hyland holds your heart and shakes it to the beat of a Tik-Tok viral dance. Caroline and Isabela, Gen Z'er and Millennial sisters, fight to connect across generational trauma in our tech dystopia to remind us that there is always something we must learn from each other.

Thank you for being here.

Summary

Bean needs her stubborn Haitian American mother to slow down and take her health seriously. Bean’s mother needs Bean to get her life together and listen to her advice. A story of two strong women who love each other mightily but don’t see eye to eye, Just The Two of us explores the complicated bond between mother and daughter and what it means to live your own version of the American Dream.
Note from the director

“you—enigmatic woman exploding from clouds and intestines, riverbanks, kneecaps, veins and horizons tongues embroidered with eyelashes.
you burn in my throat
i walk your footsteps singing.

you are here. you are there.
you will never go away.
you kiss your own breath
sleepwalk your eyes
stretch out with mouths singing your legs.”
— Sonia Sanchez, “Belly, Buttocks, and Straight Spines”

Just the Two of Us is a play that places bonds at its core—who we connect with throughout our lives, what relationships we prioritize, and how love and caretaking play a role in those connections. The thematic intersections of motherhood, daughterhood, Blackness, and womanhood are key to the relationships that Phanésia Pharel explores in this play, and it has been an immense privilege being a part of the development of new work that centers that which is so often pushed to the margins. Moving between the present and the past, shifting temporally through memories that Lady of Mind and Bean—mother and daughter—share, this play is a beautiful reflection on family, legacy, mortality, and the equal ephemerality and weightiness of what it means to achieve excellence. Just the Two of Us asks us to engage with the questions—What is that unnamable covenant formed between mothers and daughters? How do we grapple with achieving The American Dream? and, who are our forever friends?

The Playwright

Phanésia Pharel (Playwright) grew up on a dragon fruit farm in Miami and is a recent graduate of Barnard College where she majored in Urban Studies. Her plays include: Lucky (New York Stage and Film, KCACTF’s 2023 Rosa Parks Playwriting Award) and Black Girl Joy (a finalist for the Jane Chambers Award). Phanésia is a member of EST/ Youngblood, and has commissions with City Theatre Miami, the Latinx Playwrights Circle, Pregones/PRTT Greater Good Commission, and Thrown Stone Theatre. Phanésia is a 1st-year Playwriting MFA candidate at UC San Diego. Representation: Bonnie Davis, Bret Adams.
Madison Mae Williams (Director) (she/her) is a fifth-year PhD candidate. Born and raised on Cape Cod, she received her BA concentrating in musical theatre, poetry, and Africana studies from Hampshire College. Maddie’s dissertation project focuses on alienation in countercultural performances of the Long Sixties. Her other research areas include American musical theatre, the Black Power/Arts movements, horror and the uncanny, performance for children, and the films of Stanley Kubrick and John Cassavetes. Maddie has worked with La Jolla Playhouse, the Old Globe, South Coast Repertory, Cygnet Theatre, the New Cosmopolitans, the Playwrights Realm, and the Eugene O’Neill Theater Center. She is passionate about theatre work that is accessible, radical, and increases visibility and representation for people of marginalized identities. Maddie is a proud member of the Literary Managers and Dramaturgs of the Americas and the Black Theatre Network. UC San Diego credits: Machinal (Dramaturg), Baal (Director), Elektra (Music Director), Man In Love (Dramaturg), Incendiary (WNPF ‘19 staged reading), Everybody Black (Assistant/Music Director, Dramaturg). madisonmaewilliams.com

CONTENT & SENSORY WARNINGS

Depictions of physical violence against Black men, Strong language/profanity, References to death, suicide, and murder, Described violence, Blood, References to generational and family trauma, Yelling/loud sudden sounds, Flashing lights, use of FIRE ALARM sound at the end of play.

SUMMARY

It’s Ryan’s first day at a mysterious office where Black men occasionally fight each other to the death. David, the old-timer, does all he can to stay on top, but can’t keep up to save his life. In a world that encourages Black men to kill each other to survive, Boxed asks if it’s possible for Black men to love each other in the face of state-sanctioned brutality and a culture where lethal violence is an everyday reality.
Note from the director

Boxed is a play for our times. We witness David and Ryan, two Black “employees” in what seems like the office from hell. They must navigate the dangerously arbitrary rules of their surroundings that encourage them to undermine each other in order to get ahead. To me, this is the crux of the play: patriarchal white supremacy thrives when marginalized groups (in this play, specifically Black men) are prevented from collaborating and creating community. This feels especially relevant in 2023, as we continue to march through the violent backlash against the “woke” progress that was almost made during the so-called racial reckoning of 2020. We’re deep in a culture of gaslighting and lies packaged as truths designed to undermine the very real experiences of racism and anti-Black violence. These lies also purposefully obfuscate the persistent, calculated tradition of this violence in our country by placing it squarely in the realm of “history,” seemingly far away and disconnected from our current situation. This play brings it to the fore and serves as a stark reminder that our history is not as far behind as we are encouraged to think it. In doing so, it exposes the sinisterly intertwined lineage of racism and capitalism. Both are far-reaching systems deeply entrenched in American life and psyche, and Boxed poses the question: given all of this, can you ever really get out?
